Don't Let That Manure Pile Up This Winter!

Snohomish Conservation District announces the restart of the popular Farm Manure Share Program for residents of Snohomish County and Camano Island. The purpose of the Manure Share Program is to connect manure producers with gardeners, landscapers, and farmers looking for free manure. If livestock owners have more manure than they can use, and are willing to share the wealth with others, they can be added as a provider to the list. Manure may be fresh, aged, or composted. The list will be provided by request only, and it will be the responsibility of manure users to contact manure producers and arrange for pick-up. The District is providing this list as a service to landowners, and does not make any statements about the quality of the manure. Contact Caitlin Price at Snohomish Conservation District with questions or to add your name to the list: (425) 335-5634 x 114 or email caitlin@snohomishcd.org.
